

Little Causes Back of Battery Trouble

A little too much cranking.
A little lack of distilled water.
A little looseness in battery connections.
A little less charging than battery health requires.

All are little, but any one may grow quickly to the point where the starter, dimmed lights, and dead ignition give a warning that is too late. In a very few minutes we may be able to tell you facts that will prevent trouble later.

Ask, too, about the Still Better Willard—the only battery with the "Bone Dry" principle that is your absolute assurance of getting a battery as new as the day it left the factory.

WHOLE BUSINESS FULL TO BRIM WITH EXCITEMENT

Thrilling Story Told by War Correspondents in Battle Zone.

(Associated Press.)

New York, June 7.—Experiences under fire and difficulties faced by correspondents in the battle zone in France are told in a letter just received by the Associated Press from one of its correspondents with the American expeditionary forces. He also tells of the fine morale of the American troops.

"The conditions in the north (referring to the Oise district) were quite exciting for correspondents," he writes. "When I was there I was living in a town so close to the lines that six-inch shells came in on us. A number of shrapnel broke right over my house, breaking off the brick-like shingles. A 'Carnegie bowler' (steel helmet) was my best friend. There is nothing quite so upsetting as to be writing a piece for the papers and hear that whistle of a shell coming your way, hear it break almost overhead and hear the whistle that shrapnel makes as it shoots downward. The incessant racket kept up day and night.

"Nights it was worse, absolutely preventing sleep. There were the rumble and roar of French and German guns nearer the line, the crash of a French heavy, about a block away, the whistle going out and coming in and the c-r-r-r-r-rump of boche H. E. shells exploding. When you finally drop off to sleep about 3 in the morning the racket is not so great, but you never know whether you will wake up in the bed where you went to sleep, a hospital bed or whether the next thing you hear will be the voice of old St. Peter telling you to wipe the mud off your boots before entering.

"But the whole business is full to the brim with excitement, bred by uncertainty and quite the most interesting thing in the world. I would not have missed a single one of the experiences I have had for a million dollars. Any front, I think, is probably the most cheerful place on earth, although nobody would ever think so. The farther away you get from the lines the more gloom there is. But where shells fly and life is worth a nickel nothing matters to anybody. A laugh and a smile is the thing. I suppose this is because the average American soldier goes into battle or into the front firmly convinced that he'll only get a wound if the luck is right and at the same time determined to forget all about it and enjoy life. I have heard more funny stories and more laughter among our men in the line in one night than I have heard in all the rest of the time that I have been in Europe.

"And they are a great crowd, these fighters of ours; whether they do their fighting on the ground or in the air. They are game to the core, cheerful, happy and have one thought only—that is, 'Kill Germans.' And they never overlook a chance. You can't beat an army that sails into an enemy with a grin on its face and a chuckle in its heart."

AMERICANS SET TOO HOT PACE FOR GERMANS

Huns Couldn't Face Cold Steel. Sammies Capture Several Machine Guns.

London, June 7.—German troops fled before the bayonets of the American marines in the action between Verdun and Tere Thursday, according to the correspondent of the Daily Mail, with the American forces in France.

Wounded soldiers, he adds, tell how one company of marines, fighting in a wheat field, became surrounded by superior numbers, but they eventually fought their way out in the face of severe German machine fire. In addition they captured several of the machine guns.

The American troops, the correspondent adds, showed considerable skill in using cover and thereby reduced their losses appreciably. Despite the situation, however, they made the pace too hot for the Germans.

The full haul of prisoners, it is said, may reach 300.

Several wounded Germans complimented the Americans on their fighting, saying they were as good soldiers as the Germans. The Americans adapted themselves quickly to the situation and carried out their instructions without a flaw.
